KIWANIS CLUB HEARS TALK ON ALBERTA MOTOR ASSOCIATION

Chas. H. Grant, K.C., president of the Alberta Motor Association, and Alex. Huff, manager of the northern division, were the speakers at the Kiwanis luncheon Tuesday evening. The association accomplished the union of the north and south sections of the province a short time ago, and now represents a membership of 65,000, which is a real power when it comes to dealing with the government. There are still two districts, however, but merely for administrative purposes.

For several years it has fought for legislation which would help the motorist, and for better highways, and now no legislation is passed in Alberta without first being submitted to the association. The association was instrumental in getting the gravelled highways, as they first laid down the policy and the government approved of it.

Much money has been spent in advertising in the American magazines and in other ways, and now the benefit is being reaped in the tourist traffic coming into the province. Considerable money has also been spent in maintaining auto camps and road information bureaus and in marking roads. The association has been working for the preservation of our scenic resources, beautification of the highways, and the elimination of objectionable outdoor advertising.

The association is affiliated with the A.A.A., whose emblem is a part of the emblem of the Alberta association, and the motorist is assured courtesy and protection, not only in Alberta, but throughout the U.S. as well. The membership card entitles the holder to free emergency service of thirty minutes or less within ten miles from the service garage, and on the gravelled highway or city street, and free towing service, if necessary, to the garage.

President Wright, who was chairman of the meeting, reported that the association had agreed to cooperate with the R.R.s and the Exhibition Association in putting on a carnival again this year, the dates of which would be about June 20, 30 and July 1, 2, and Kiwanians George James, J. P. Ellis and H. W. Wright were appointed to represent the Kiwanians on the executive committee.

TO WIDEN MARKET FOR ALBERTA COAL

Winnipeg, April 18.—Plans are maturing for a campaign to give a wider market in Manitoba and Saskatchewan for Alberta coal. It includes efforts to have all miners and their friends buy goods chiefly of those brands manufactured or handled by organizations that use Alberta coal, or at least do not use American coal where Alberta fuel is available.

The coal miners' unions are to be given the assistance of other unions on the prairies to work out the plans, so those responsible for the idea assert. Negotiations have been under way for the past month in this direction. It is taken for granted that it will meet the active opposition of Alberta and British Columbia mine owners and perhaps develop a more intimate feeling between the operators and employees.

PERITONEAL CURE CLAIMED BY U.S. SCIENTIFIC BODY

Rochester, N.Y., April 18.—Scientific speaking before the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology here Friday revealed new secrets in combating disease and disclosed new information concerning the world of living things.

From the scores of addresses on subjects and experiments highly technical came tidings of a new method found to be effective in treating peritonitis, even to the point where the present high death rate may be curtailed if not ended.

Report was made also of the discovery of what appears to be a specific poison in the blood of persons afflicted with high blood pressure, of the production of the drug ephedrine from a herb grown in this country and of the finding of a new anesthetic compound believed to be a sure cure of forms of sleeping sickness.

Reports of experiments with the removal of sections of the sympathetic nervous system were given as basis for the belief that man is able at last to cure "cold feet" possibly dyspepsia, and to relieve conditions where blood vessels have contracted.

Dr. Bernard Steinberg of Cleveland, announced the new treatment for peritonitis, reporting the conclusions drawn from experiments made by Dr. Harry Goldblatt, also of Cleveland, and himself. The method, he said, is to inoculate with germs of peritonitis to cause the disease germs then giving the subject serum made of bacteria from another subject which has developed peritonitis.

"The effect," he explained, "is to place in the system, bacteria which are in conflict with those of the active disease—a poison which will fight a poison. In the cases with which we experimented we were quite successful."

New Edifice Favored at Annual Meeting of First United Church

Committees Merged to Consider Plans and Inaugurate Drive for Necessary Funds. Various Reports show Great Diversity of Activities. New Board of Stewards Elected, and Selection of Sunday School Staff Ratified.

The annual meeting of the congregation of the First United Church in Wetaskiwin was held on Wednesday, April 13, with a representative congregation present. After worship, conducted by the minister, W. H. Odell was voted to the chair and E. E. Chandler as secretary.

The following reports were received: Session by Rev. J. L. Elliott; Official Board by E. E. Chandler; Board of Stewards by W. H. Odell; W.M.S. by Mrs. J. Vickers; Ladies' Aid by Mrs. V. C. French; Sunday school by Rev. L. Thomas; Cradle roll by Mr. G. D. Wallace; Beginners' department by Mrs. D. A. Lasey; Young People by Mrs. A. Lord; Adult Bible class by L. Robinson; Choir by N. A. MacEachern; C.G.I.T. by Kathleen Walker and Norma Nelson; Tuxis Square by Earl Melville; Mission band by Mrs. Vary; Travel Ranges and Harvesters by A. L. Elliott; Literature secretary by Mrs. A. S. The reports showed a great diversity of activities and that in each branch of work a very high standard of excellence has been attained. Each report unconsciously breathed forth the spirit of confidence in Divine guidance, and, with the prophet of old calmly said: "Hilbert hath the Lord helped us." With this same optimism all looked forward to the coming days and hope to accomplish even greater things.

After the reports had been received, the congregation proceeded to the election of officers. The Session nominated as clerk Mr. H. G. Finch, who for years had been representative of the congregation. This nomination was unanimously endorsed by the congregation.

In the matter of the Board of Stewards, it was thought best to reduce the number to six. Accordingly, all stewards were retired from office and an altogether new board was elected.

The Ladies' Aid served dainty refreshments and a social half hour was spent at the conclusion of the business.

The report of the ways and means committee of the building project was received and endorsed after considerable discussion. The general opinion of the congregation is that a new church is needed. The building committee and the ways and means committee were asked to combine and were charged with the responsibility of reviewing the plan as to make it as complete as possible, of canvassing the congregation for money, and taking all other necessary steps for the erection of a new church as soon as possible.

The Greatest Mystery Story Ever Written

BEAU GESTE

By PERCIVAL CHRISTOPHER WREN

Our adventures between Zinder and the British border at Barbera, where we first saw Haussas in the uniform of the West African Field Force, were numerous, and our hardships great; but fate seemed to have done its worst—and now that I had lost Digby, and Buddy had lost Hank, and neither of us cared very much what happened, our luck changed and all went fairly well.

And one day we rode, on miserable donkeys, into the great city of Kano, and I revealed myself to an astounded Englishman as a comrade.

He was kindness itself, and put me in communication with a friend, or rather a friend of Aunt Patricia's, a Mr. Lawrence of the Nigerian Civil Service. This gentleman sent me money and an invitation to come and stay with him at his headquarters and to bring Buddy with me.

And when I told Buddy that on the morrow he was actually going to ride in a train once more—I found that he was not.

He had only come to Kano to see me safe, and, having done so, he was going straight back to look for Hank!

Nothing would shake his determination, and it was waste of words to try. Nor was it pleasant to strive to persuade him that his friend was dead.

"Would you go if it was your brother that was lost, pard?" he said. "None. Hank gave his life for us."

All I could do was to see him fitted out with everything procurable in Kano—a fine camel, a spare one for food, water, ammunition, and a small tent, and a Haussa ex-soldier as servant and guide, recommended by the Kano Englishman, an official named Mordaunt.

The latter made it clear to the Haussa that he was to go north with this American "explorer," obey him in all things, receive half his pay before starting, and the other half, with a bonus depending in value upon his merit, when he returned to Kano with his master, or honorably discharged.

Mordaunt was good enough to accept my word that if he would be my banker in this matter, I would adjust things as soon as I saw Mr. Lawrence who was an old friend of his.

I hated parting with the staunch, brave, great-hearted little Buddy, and I felt that he would never return to Kano unless it was with Hank, and I had no hope whatever of his doing that.

I wondered if I should ever have had the cold-iron courage to go voluntarily back into that hell, after escaping it by a miracle, on such a ghost of a chance of finding a friend.

I took the train at Kano to some place of which I have forgotten the name, and Lawrence met me on the platform. I remembered his face as soon as I saw it, as that of the quiet, rather dear and repellent man who had been to Brandon Abbas two or three times when we were there.

He came nearer to showing excitement, when he listened to my story, than I thought was his wont. When I had finished he said:

"I should like to know when fiction was much stranger than this piece of truth! And you still do not know the rights of this 'Blue Water' mystery?"

"No," I said. "I only know that my brother Michael never stole anything in his life."

"Quite so," he replied. "Of course And now I have something to tell you. Your Major de Beaujolais was sent down to Zinder and from there he went home on leave via Kano, and on Kano railway station platform I met him, and he told me the story of the Zinder plot, from his side of the business, and about finding your brother's 'confession.' I went on to Brandon Abbas and told Lady Brandon what he told me—and it really did not seem to interest her enormously."

It was my turn to feel excited now. It was incredible to me that there in a hammock-chair under the African stars, outside this man's tent, a whiskey and soda in my hand and a cheroot in my mouth, and hear him tell how he had taken our Zinder plot story to Brandon Abbas!

"I think I was soon past wonder and all power to feel astonished," he said. "What did strike me and what did give me endless food for speculation from then until I saw her, was his account of how Aunt Patricia had received his incredible news. Apparently he did not seem even to want to get the stretched jewel back. Her attitude had puzzled Lawrence, and it puzzled me as he described it."

When Lawrence had finished his tale he gave me much Brandon Abbas news.

Sir Hector Brandon was dead. He had died miserably, alone in Kashkur, of cholera—his servant and coolies having fled as soon as the disease was recognized for what it was.

The Chaplain had died of what was apparently a paralytic stroke. Claudia had married one of the richest men in England, nearly old enough to be her grandfather.

Augustus, always a poor horseman, had fallen off his hunter and dragged until he was very dead indeed. Isobel was quite well. No, she had not married. How long was it since Mr. Lawrence had heard from Lady Brandon? Oh, quite recently, only a month or so ago. She wrote more frequently nowadays. Seemed to have no one to turn to for advice, now the Chaplain was dead.

Isobel was well and unmarried! I was conscious that I was breathing more freely and my heart functioning more regularly than I had done since this grave austere official had mentioned Claudia's marriage.

And so Aunt Patricia knew! Yet what did she know after all? Merely that Michael professed and confessed to be the single-headed thief of the "Blue Water," and that he and he alone was to blame.

Did she yet know the truth as to the theft?

I had been feeling horribly ill for some time, and now I collapsed altogether with a combination of malaria and dysentery—that ill-omened union after whose attack a man is never quite the same again.

Had I been Lawrence's own son, he could not have done more for me, and the government doctor, who came post-haste by rail and horse, was splendid. It was a close call and a long, slow recovery, but the day came at last when I found myself well, shaky, and emaciated on Malaguti platform on route for Lagos and home.

George Lawrence was with me, having sworn not to let me out of his sight until he had delivered me safe and sound at Brandon Abbas. I put aside the unworthy thought which occurred to me—but it was himself, he yearned to see safe and sound at that house!

And so, one day, I found myself on the deck of a steamer, breathing glorious sea air, and looking back on the receding coast of horrible Africa, and almost too weak to keep my eyes from watering and my throat from swelling.

As I realized that I was leaving behind me all that was mortal of two of the best and finest men that ever lived—my brothers, Michael and Digby. Also two more of the finest men of a different kind, Hank and Buddy, possibly alive, probably dead (for no word had come to Kano)—and, but for Isobel, I should have wished that I was dead too.

But I was glad to be alive, and in my selfishness let my joy lay balm upon my grief for my brothers and my friends—for in my pocket were cables from Isobel, cables dispatched as soon as Lawrence's letter reached Brandon Abbas, announcing the appearance in Nigeria, and the deaths of Michael and Digby.

I will not write of my meeting with her. Those who love, or ever have loved, can imagine something of what I felt as I walked to the bow, where she selected to be our meeting place rather than a railway station or a steamer's deck.

Well, Joy does not kill, or I should not have survived that hour. Aunt Patricia was coldly kind at first.

I was made to feel that she had kept for me one day, and I had refused to come, and had further disobeyed her by leaving the house, against her expressed wishes.

After lunch, in the drawing room, the room from which the "Blue Water" had disappeared, I gave her, in the presence of Isobel and George Lawrence, the letter and packet that had been sent me in charges to me.

She opened the letter and read it, and then read aloud in a clear and steady voice:

"My most dear and admired Aunt, When you get this, I shall be dead, and when you have read it I shall be forgiven, I hope, for I did what I thought was best, and what, in a small measure, repay you for some of your great goodness to me and my brothers."

My dear Aunt, I knew you had sold the "Blue Water" to the Maharajah (for the benefit of the tenants and the estate), and I knew you must dread the return of Sir Hector, and his discovery of the fact, sooner or later.

I was inside one of the suits of armor when you handed the "Blue Water" over to the vizier or agent of the Maharajah. I heard everything, and when you had once said what you said and I had heard it—it was pointless for me to confess that I knew—but when I found that you had had a duplicate made, I thought what a splendid thing it would be if we only had a burglary and the 'Blue Water' substitute was stolen. The thieves would be nicely done in the eye, and your sale of the stone would never be discovered by Sir Hector!

Then Sir Hector's letter came, announcing his return, and I knew that things were desperate and the matter urgent. So I spirited away that clever piece of glass or quartz, and I here-with return it (with apologies). I nearly did put it back after all, the same night, but I'm glad I didn't. (Tell John this.)

Now I do pray and beg of you to let Sir Hector go on thinking that I am a common thief—or all this bother that everybody has had will be all for nothing, and I shall have failed to shield you from trouble and annoyance.

If it is not impertinent, may I say that I think you were absolutely right to sell it, and that the value is a jolly sight better applied to the health and happiness of the tenants and villagers and to the productiveness of the farms than locked up in a safe in the form of a shining stone that is of no earthly benefit to anyone.

I nearly made me regret what I had done, when those asses, Digby and John, had the cheek to bolt too. Honestly, it never occurred to me that they would do anything so silly. But I suppose it is selfish of me to want all the blame and all the fun and pleasure of doing a little job for you.

I do hope that all has gone well and turned out as I had planned. I bet Uncle Hector was sick!

Well, my dear Aunt, I can only pray that I have helped you a little. With sincerest gratitude for all you have done for us.

Your loving nephew,
"Beau" Geste.

"A 'beau geste' indeed," said Aunt Patricia, and for the only time in my life, I saw here put her handkerchief to her eyes.

Extract from a letter from George Lawrence, Esq., C.M.G., of His Majesty's Nigerian Civil Service, to Colonel Henri de Beaujolais, Colonel of Spahis, XIXth (African) Army Corps.

... And so that is the other side of the story, my friend. Also, for those two splendid boys, Michael and Digby Geste.

And the remaining piece of news is that I most sincerely hope that you will be able to come over to England in June.

You are the best man I know, Jolly, and I want you to be my Best Man.

Grow With Wetaskiwin

The "boom" town is ever alluring to large numbers, in that it seemingly offers the opportunity to grow up with the place. To get in on the ground floor, so to speak, at first blush, prompts great numbers to rush to the new place, where they will find many others who had been attracted in the same manner.

They seek their new home with the avowed purpose of growing up with the town and that determination serves as an impetus for extra effort. If perchance the ambitions of its founders are realized, those with that determination to grow with the place will succeed, provided the determination is sincere and a proportionate amount of energy is displayed in their efforts.

Have you grown with Wetaskiwin? Have you kept pace with its advancement and development? There has been no boom here, as that term is usually applied to the growth of the so-called mushroom cities that spring to life over night, only to fade away almost as quickly. There has been, however, a healthy, steady, wonderful growth and advancement here for the past 20 years. True, there has been no stream of prospectors added to the normal growth to cause the population to increase as rapidly as has been the case in many other cities of this size.

The growth in wealth and health has been phenomenal. The advancement in civic improvements, its streets, churches, schools, residences, and various enterprises is such that there is just cause for exceeding pride.

There have been and are now as great opportunities for success here as there are in those new or proposed boom towns. The opportunity to grow up with the place, to get in on the ground floor, holds as good in Wetaskiwin as other places. If your desire to grow up with Wetaskiwin has been sincere and the effort expended sufficient, you have grown up with it.

Wetaskiwin is going to continue to grow and develop. You may if you choose grow with it. When you do so, yours and the city's growth will be mutual. In just the proportion in which your aid is given in the advancement and development, will the return be to the city.

PACKERS WANT SELECT HOGS AS THEIR BASIS

Discreet rumblings of objection to the present hog grading and buying system culminated at western live stock meetings during the spring shows with the suggestion that our present system of selling on the thick smooth hogs, with a premium of 10 per cent on select hogs, be abandoned and that select hogs be made the basis of buying with the rest of the hogs to be purchased on what someone has very nicely termed a "flexible factor."

Suggestions regarding the change are being put forward by the packing house men. From the start the western packers were not enthusiastic over the present system owing to the peculiar conditions of western markets and the fact that there has not as yet been sufficient volume of bacon hogs to make this an important branch of the packing industry. In fact it has been claimed by the packers that the more bacon hogs they buy, the more money they lose, because they pay a 10 per cent premium for a hog they cannot sell at an advanced price on local markets.

However, the west is increasing its number of bacon hogs and there has been a great deal of consideration given to the production of this particular type and a great deal of money spent by the farmers in endeavoring to get breeding stock of the proper kind. There is every reason to suppose that in the course of a few years the prairie provinces will be marketing quite a reasonable proportion of bacon hogs—enough to make it worth while for the western packers to look upon these hogs from an export viewpoint.

Two objections which the packers make are: 1st, that they are subjected to a loss of around $4 a hog on the sides exported as Wilshire. The other objection is that the basic price is raised owing to the competition of buyers from United States markets.

These conditions are interlocking: The American demand raises the price for the thick smooth hog, and that puts the premium up to a point where the packers make their claim of losing $4 on Wilshire sides when exported.

While hog producers may sympathize with the packers to some extent in their present dilemma, the packers must remember that it was instantly forced down the farmers' throats that they must specialize in the production of bacon hogs and that the logical market was the old country. In fact, the "dope" then was that a surplus of non-descript hogs would bankrupt the farmers, as there was no market outlet for a surplus of this type, but there was an unlimited outlet for the bacon type.

Now, while there is a temporary change in marketing conditions, the suggestion is that the best hogs the farmers raise should sell for the basic price and the remainder, the very large majority, sell at some price to be governed by the intangible "flexible factor."

Of course, that "flexible factor" is not mentioned in dollars and cents, or percentages—but it is a cliché that it will be a material reduction from the price paid for the select.

It has been hard enough to get the farmers—at least some of them—to start to raise the bacon type hog. If the premium is taken off now, just because there happens to be a demand for hogs in the United States, and on the other hand, an unfavorable trade condition in the old country, all the progress which has been made will be lost. Then again, when the premium is taken off, the packers will get out of line of the United States hog men will demand a protective tariff, and in the meantime the packers will have lost the British trade that everybody has been so energetically booting for during the past few years.

When that condition arises is just the time that the Canadian hog industry will get the most severe blow in its history.

And it will come if the premium is taken off the select. Stick to the 10 per cent premium and wait the "flexible factor."—Market Examiner.

CAREFUL GRADING OF SEED POTATOES IS MOST ESSENTIAL

Certain Tuber-Borne Diseases Which Should be Eliminated From Seed Potatoes Intended for Approaching Season's Planting.

(Experimental Farms Note)

Severe and careful grading of potatoes intended for seed and the discarding of all abnormal tubers during cutting operations is not only commendable, but absolutely essential, if the maximum return from the crop is to be expected.

It is extremely fortunate that the majority of diseases which attack the potato, decreasing it not entirely ruining the crop, manifest themselves in the tubers before planting time. Therefore, removal of this source of contamination insures a crop to a remarkable degree.

Before cutting the seed run the stock over a hand rack and remove all tubers that are off-type or under three ounces in weight; all showing black scurf and anything showing brown necrotic lesions on the surface or rot of any kind, no matter how slight. Even during careful grading certain diseased tubers will pass by unnoticed, therefore unless the greatest care is taken the object will be defeated.

Upon the completion of judicious grading there is still another step. There are many internal abnormalities, such as black heart, stem end rot or internal necrosis, which can only be observed after the tuber is cut. Under no circumstances should sets exhibiting these conditions be planted.

How many farmers would raise progeny from animals known to be diseased and of inferior type or plant grain harvested from badly smutted fields and expect to be recompensed for their efforts? Then why expect so much from a potato? Show a little foresight. You cannot expect to sell all your marketable stock and keep the seconds for your own planting without paying the penalty. As long as a set, when planted, has an eye, that is all some people think is necessary to secure satisfactory results. The laws of nature cannot be disputed; a man can harvest only what he plants. If only carefully selected seed is used for planting the resulting crop will more than compensate for the labor expended.

How to Play BRIDGE

A new series of lessons by Wynne Ferguson
Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

One of the most difficult problems that comes up at the bridge table is the proper lead when partner has not made bid. Many a game and rubber is won or lost by the opening lead, so whenever possible try to add to your store of knowledge of sound opening leads. Here is a good example hand that was played in a recent duplicate match:

Hearts—10, 8
Clubs—8, 6, 4, 2
Diamonds—A, K, Q, J
Spades—A, Q, 7, 3

Z dealt and passed. A bid one diamond. Y passed. B bid one heart and all passed. What is Z's proper opening lead? Z should lead the deuce of clubs. The diamond opening is bad because of A's lead. Never lead an unopened suit unless you hold a sure stopper in the other three suits. Otherwise it is a very risky proposition. As a matter of fact, the sound lead, the deuce of clubs, is the only lead that will save the game.

Answer to Problem No. 23
Hearts—K, Q, 7, 2
Clubs—K, Q, J
Diamonds—A, Q, J, 4
Spades—A, J, 8, 3

No score, rubber game. If Z dealt, bid one trump and A bid two diamonds, what would you bid with Y's hand? Y has the choice of several bids. He may double two diamonds and feel fairly

NO MORE MOVES FROM DRY BELT

After May 1st, the government will cease to give assistance to settlers residing in the so-called dry areas who wish to move to other parts of the province. During the past several years this practice has been followed, but any persons wishing to move out of the dry belt must get their applications in to the government at Edmonton before the end of the month. After that date the deal is off.

FIRST SIGNS OF SPRING
The garden catalogues are here with all their magic lure. And help to soothe the hungry ache that only spring can cure. They speak of phlox and hollyhocks—of lettuce pens and beans, and only longing gardeners can tell you all that means.

Here and There

Toronto-capital will develop the only known blue tale deposits in Canada, the bed located about ten miles southwest of Banff. A private company, adequately financed, has been organized, and it is said that development operations will begin at once. White tale deposits are also found in association with the blue tale.

To replenish depleted British Columbia herds a carload of mountain sheep from the Banff National Park and another from elk from the Watnigait Park are being brought in to the province and will be released in the mountains near Spence's Bridge, according to M. B. Jackson, chairman of the Provincial Game Conservation Board.

In order to establish a model settlement just outside Winnipeg, a party of Catholic colonists sailed on the Canadian Pacific liner "Mar-loch" for Saint John and reached Winnipeg in charge of Father Keir-burk of the German Catholic Immigration Association. The party consisted of about 30 families and came under the direction of the Canada Colonization Association.

Included in the programme of new construction in the Manitoba district of the Canadian Pacific Railway is the building of new standard station houses to be located at Upsala, Toulon, Peterfield, Kenyon, Alameda, Pettipiece and Dominion City. New section houses will be built at sixteen points in the Manitoba district while a mechanically operated coaling plant with a capacity of 100 tons will be built at Poplar Point.

Saint John Nelson Christananda, describing himself as a Christian Apostolic Preacher, and originating from Southern India, arrived in Canada recently on the Canadian Pacific liner "Montrose" from England. He is a "Sadhu" which translated signifies a Saint and is conducting a short mission of about two months in Canada. Mr. Christananda stated that he had been preaching through Europe and had assisted, associated with all Christian churches without being bound down by any dogmas. He said he was welcomed by all religious organizations.

A consignment of Canadian manufactured ice cream shipped from Saint John, in the middle of last month featured the menu of a banquet tendered to over 400 British buyers by the Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner in London. On account of the large Canadian representation at the banquet the Commissioners ordered the cream through the Purity Ice Cream Co. in Montreal, and was handled during its 3,000-mile journey across the Atlantic by the Canadian Pacific Express Company. A ton of ice was placed aboard the C. P. liner "Minuteman" to insure its arriving in perfect condition.

Details of the British Government's exhibit at the World's Poultry Congress, to be held at Ottawa, July 27th to August 4th next, have been received by the Congress committee. Handling the list of exhibitors from Great Britain is His Majesty the King, who has signified his intention of exhibiting pigeons, while H.R.H. the Prince of Wales is sending along some chickens from his famous farm in Cornwall. The British exhibit will consist of models of the poultry farms of Lord Dewar and Tom Barron, two of the best known poultry breeders in England. Hon. Miss Florence Amherst and St. Dunstan's Hotel for the Blind, are also participating. The British representation will include many technical features. Official British delegates to the Congress are Sir Francis Flouet, permanent under-secretary to the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries, and Percy Francis, Poultry Commissioner to the Ministry of Agriculture.

AT THE LAST

When my old Aunt Jane was dying she was calm and unafraid; she was smiling in relying on the promises displayed in the Book she had been reading; when she said this world receding she put up no frenzied pleading; she believed in every chapter, she had faith in every verse, and a halcyon peace enveloped her when she heard of the for her; she was sure she'd soon be hearing where the angels bright were singing, so old Father Death was bringing recompense and nothing worse. All the ills of life were over, all the pains and hopes deferred; she would romp in Eden's clover happy as a daisy-bird; to be fearful of the going when it means a future glowing where the crystal streams are flowing would be futile and absurd. So my aunt was blithe and chipper when at last she cashed her strings; up beyond the Bear and Dipper they can doubtless hear her sing; up beyond the starry ceiling where a million orbs are reeling, many saints behold her kneeling at the footstool of the King. "Ah, her faith was but a flavor," so the Modern Thinker bawls; "and there is no crystal river, and there are no Jasper walls; when your aunt's long life was ended to the heights no soul ascended; all of her is straightway blended with the earth that on her falls. We can prove by ancient boulders and by prehistoric stones, prove by pier-olactyls' shoulders and by mastodonic bones, that the Scriptures are a fable, idle, harmless and unstable; that there was no man named Abel, and that Jacob's name was Jones." But my aunt found death inviting, with her noble faith endowed; she is doubtless at this writing, seated on a pearly cloud; and if faith dispels the terrors of poor perishing wayfarers, all the arguments are errors of the Modern Science crowd.—Walt Mason.

Nervous Breakdown Heart Palpitation Shortness of Breath

Mrs. J. C. Cuffing, Bonanza Doon Ranch, Okotoks, Alta., writes: "About three years ago I had a nervous breakdown followed by heart palpitation and shortness of breath. I could not stand the least bit of excitement or hurry in doing my work, just had to be quiet in everything I was doing."

At last I decided to take and after taking one box I was sleeping better at night, and also having less difficulty in breathing. I continued with the remedy until I had taken eight boxes. I was putting on flesh, eating and enjoying my meals better, while my heart bothered me very little, in fact, hardly ever." Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills regulate and stimulate the heart and strengthen and restore the whole nervous system.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are for a box at all druggists and dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

In the city where he lives and spends it in some other city is no citizen. That the man who sends his money away from home and then expects his home city to prosper is a candidate for the "Bag House" and the sooner he goes there the better off the home city will be.

That the man who helps to build a city, other than the one he lives in is a liability, not an asset.

That every citizen should be a booster for better business for the home city.

That they should help to keep their city on the map in capital letters.

That the citizens who think a city can be built without cooperation are just dreaming.

That for a city to grow all citizens must be loyal to the home city and keep their dollars working at home.

That if nobody pays any attention to the needs of the home city and everybody just paddles their own canoe, it's goodbye business and goodbye any hopes for the home city.

The city that pays attention to its natural resources, keeps up its appearance and helps in the development of its trade territory, gets somewhere.

An unattractive looking city hasn't half a chance.

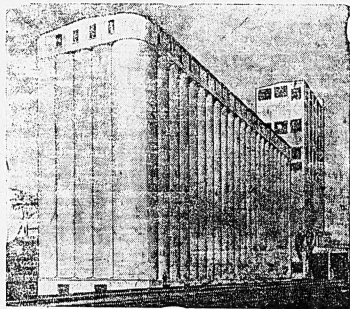

In order to install home pride and attract new industries, a city should keep dressed up. A good front goes a long way.

Operations of Alberta Wheat Pool's Prince Rupert Elevator

The Alberta Wheat Pool has loaded 22 ships with wheat from the 1926 crop at Prince Rupert and expects to bring the total up to 24 before the crop movement is ended this spring.

The Alberta pool terminal at Prince Rupert has already handled 5,188,000 bushels and the total will reach 5,785,000 bushels within a few weeks. This is a larger total than was anticipated last fall.

The Prince Rupert house was built and is owned by the Canadian government, has a capacity of 1,250,000 bushels and is probably the fastest handling terminal on the coast. It is under lease to the Alberta Pool for a term of two years. Joseph Bennett is superintendent of this elevator.

Through the pool's extensive operation, the ocean freight differential has disappeared and grain is shipped to Europe from Prince Rupert at the same rate as from Vancouver.

Of the 24 ships already loaded or committed, six carried grain to the Orient and eighteen to Europe.

Previous to the pool leasing the Rupert elevator, no wheat had been shipped from that port.

WINS YOU AN AUDIENCE

in the Many Homes of Wetaskiwin and District

YOU, MR. MERCHANT, know that it's the "home folks" . . . particularly the housewives who do most of the buying for the home . . . whom you want to reach with your sales message. But don't think for a moment that they're going to come to you for facts and figures.

Deduction

The bashful bachelor encountered a neighbor, a young mother, and, wishing to be neighborly, asked:

How is your little girl, Mrs. Jones? My little boy is quite well, thank you, replied the proud mother.

"Oh, it's a boy," exclaimed the bachelor, in confusion. "I knew it was one or the other."

The Alternative

A well known clergyman was speaking on the subject of "Faith."

"Here is a case of blind faith," he said. "The doctor writes out a prescription. Often that not, you cannot read it; you don't know what it is. He tells you to take it. 'You're not to reason why, yours but to do and die.'"

Then he wondered why a distant ripple of laughter was heard throughout the church.

Has Big Problem

It was at a revival in a southern town. One obdurate soul stoutly resisted the elder's exhortations.

"To see its ills way, Eldest: Ah's done got a problem. Ah don't see how Ah's gvine git mah shirt on ovah mah wings when Ah gits to Glory."

"Dat ain't no problem," retorted the Elder. "Yo' problem is how yo gwine git yo' hat ovah yo' house."

A colored lady accompanied her mistress to an entertainment where a medium had aroused much interest by reading a newspaper through a thick black cloth while blindfolded. At this juncture the colored lady got up to leave. "You are not going, are you Amity?" asked her mistress. "Ah snah is," replied Amity. "Dis book am no place for a 'speckle cuttind lady wid nothin on but a tin calico dress."

IF FOOD DISAGREES
DRINK HOT WATER
With Magnesia to Neutralize Acid and Stop Indigestion. Gives Instant Relief
When food lies like lead in your stomach and you have that full, bloated feeling, it is because of insufficient blood supply to the stomach, combined with stomach acidity and food fermentation. In such cases try the plan now followed by hundreds of other sufferers from indigestion by simply taking a teaspoonful of pure Bismuth Magnesia in half a glass of water, as hot as you can comfortably drink it. The hot water draws the blood to the stomach and the Bismuth Magnesia, as any physician can tell you, instantly neutralizes the acid and stops the food fermentation. Try this simple plan and you will be astonished at the immediate feeling of relief and comfort that always follows this simple, harmless restoration of the normal process of digestion. People who find it inconvenient at times to secure hot water and travelers who are frequently obliged to take hasty meals poorly prepared, should always take two or three five-grain tablets of Bismuth Magnesia after meals to prevent fermentation and to neutralize the excess acid in their stomach.

THE SIMPLE THINGS

I would not be too wise—no very wise That I must sneer at simple songs and creeds; And let the glare of wisdom blind my eyes, To humble people and their humble needs. I would not care to climb so high that I Could never hear the children at their play; Could only see the people passing by, And never hear the cheering words they say. I would not know too much—too much to smile At trivial errors of the heart and hand; Nor be too proud to play the friend the while, Nor cease to help, and know, and understand. I would not care to sit upon a throne, Or build my house upon a mountain top; Where I must dwell in glory all alone And never friend come in or poor man stop. God grant that I may live upon this earth And face the tasks which every morning brings, And never lose the glory and the worth! Of humble service and the simple things.

—Edgar A. Guest.

W.I.G.C. MEETING

The W.I.G.C. held their last meeting at the home of Miss N. Buchanan. The meeting was opened by the singing of "O Canada." The minutes of the last meeting were then read and adopted. No program was held as there was too much business to discuss. The subject of a contest was discussed and it was decided that each member must know what part she wishes to take in the contest by the next meeting. There was also a discussion on the millinery demonstration to be held in Millet on April 23, 24 and 25 and it was decided that the club serve supper at the dance on April 29, in order to raise funds for the expenses of the next delegate to Banff. The next meeting will be held on April 27 at the home of Mrs. Anderson.

SPECIAL EASTER SERVICE

The special Easter service in the Millet United church was well attended, and even though the weather disagreed many from being present. The address by the minister, Rev. A. B. Argue, was very inspiring, dwelling on the importance of the fact of the Resurrection, the risen Christ being by many, and written in the four gospels.
Special Easter hymns, a men's chorus, "Stand up, Stand up, for Jesus," an anthem, "Christ is Risen," by the choir, and two very sweet cello selections by Mr. Killinski, accompanied by Miss Ruby Pribe, were all greatly appreciated by the congregation.
The spirit of Easter time was enhanced by two beautiful Easter lilies and a mass of shamrock at the pulpit.
The choir has been requested to repeat some of the Easter music on Sunday evening next.

APRIL

The level throats of flying sheet. Thick-veined through the roaring trees. Fill the dim ways where April's feet Shall rest in gentler days than those The blasts that through the cedars blow. Hasten the time for which we long. When riddle brooks of thawing snow Groping to the robin's song. And quietly this woodland sleep. Waits under piling drifts unseen. To bring the trilliums of our hope In snowy hogs among the green.

THE SONG BOOK OF CANADIAN GIRLS IN TRAINING

By camp-fire light, at conferences and rallies, wherever Canadian Girls in Training have gathered together in the years since the organization of the movement, they have sung songs, some old, some new, some with the "catchy" tunes and some the folk songs and hymns especially—with music appealing and beautiful. With their song books have been introduced and the demand for a song book became so great that the National Girls' Work board decided to issue such a volume. Long and ardently the committee worked under the direction of Miss Jessie MacPherson to produce a collection of songs of the better type. "The Song Book of Canadian Girls in Training" is now off the press. It contains one hundred and four songs, ninety-six with music, which are arranged in groups. Great care has been taken in selecting the choicest among the folk songs of England and America and the negro spirituals. The singing games that the girls like to play, have a place as well as the songs and hymns that have become almost a part of the music. The whole collection is very splendid and will add greatly to the enjoyment of the sing-songs that all young people like so well.

The Cheapest Drink in The World

With the exception of water, tea is the cheapest and most widely consumed drink in the world. As a drink it is good when made from good tea, but is a terrible disappointment if cheap tea is used.

THINK IT OVER

"Twins yesterday we thought we'd write that letter which would give delight. 'Twins yesterday we thought we'd send some money to a needy friend. 'Twins yesterday we meant to cheer; we meant to help a weaker man to achieve his good, by half formed plan. But yesterday, alas, has fled. Not one act done, not one word said. Now, when we feel that inner urge, when our soul kind feelings surge, when we are suddenly aware that we have more than just our share, when words of praise invade our heart, and when we see grief's tears upstart—oh! let us do the kindly thing before today is on the wing."

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM NEAR AND FAR

The government of India in 1924-25 spent ten cents per head of the entire population on education. And yet that was no small burden on the national finances.
Persia is no longer far away. There are 25 young Persians at present at the Ford school of mechanics at Detroit, seeking an education which they could not secure in their own country.
The farmer is the largest buyer of motor cars. Six million farm families in the United States are now in possession of automobiles. This is as it should be, and it may be that the auto will help to make farm life more attractive to this and the next generation.
Paris is to construct underground passages for automobiles at its busy street intersections in order to relieve the traffic congestion. If the system works satisfactorily, it will be extended very widely, and doubtless will be utilized in other countries.
British Columbia has now 500 members of its goat-breeders' association, and the sale of goats' milk is said to be increasing rapidly, in some districts the supply not being equal to the demand. Other provinces might well follow British Columbia's lead in this matter.
A Turkish chemist is said to have discovered a gas which is fatal to insect life and not injurious to man; and the government is about to use it in an endeavor to destroy the locust pests which frequent his great marshes. If this proves to be a good thing we shall shortly find it in wide use upon this continent to get rid of our mosquitoes.

London, England, has had its visitation of motor bandits, and the citizens of that ancient and illustrious city had the strange vision of a policeman, on a white horse, trying to catch a motor car travelling at the rate of forty miles, or more, per hour. Needless to say, the bandits won out. The police have cars for this purpose but the bandits are too fast for them. A certain commune in Switzerland having a plague of moles, offered a bounty of ten sous for every mole destroyed, the tails to be offered as proof of the destruction of the pests. One man attracted attention by the great number of moles which he was successful in destroying. The fellow turned out to be an ingenious rogue. He took the molekins and by dint of a little labor and a glue one skin was made to yield a number of tails. It worked for a short time, but then the authorities discovered the fraud, and the man had again to revert to more honest ways of making a living from the moles of the United States. The farmer in the making of a day works on the average 11.3 hours a day; but his wife works 11.4 hours a day. The living expenses of 3000 farm families in 11 states averaged $1594 a year of which $484 was furnished by the farm.
South Africa is in the grip of a very serious drought; 40,000 cattle have died, three rivers have dried up, and the natives are moving into the cities to escape starvation. It is the worst drought that ever struck the Pietersburg district of the Transvaal, with living memory.
There are about 750,000 young men and women attending college in the United States, or about 60 per 10,000 of the population. In France, about 13 out of 10,000 attend college, and in the British Isles about 15 out of 10,000.

The citizens of Wetaskiwin will, in the near future, have the opportunity of hearing one of the finest musical organizations in the province, namely the Crooked Lake Boys Band, when they will give a concert in this city shortly. This band, though only organized two years ago, play grade 2 and 2 1/2 music, and consists of boys from 7 to 16 years of age. They have, under the splendid and untiring efforts of the leader and organizer, Mr. Carl Jensen, been brought up to a

NEWS

NEW NORWAY WEST

New Norway, April 11—Owing to the bad condition of the country roads there was not a large attendance at the Zion church last Friday evening, where the members and ex-members of the Pansy Club put on a program and supper, the occasion being in honor of the tenth anniversary of the club.

Percy Smith was an Edmonton visitor the latter part of last week.

Miss Gertrude McIntyre was a business visitor to Camrose on Monday and Tuesday.

J. P. Beller was a Wetaskiwin visitor last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Flint, who have been spending the winter visiting relatives and friends in Washington and California, returned to their home in the district last Thursday.

Natt Johns was a business visitor in Edmonton for a few days last week, where he shipped a carload of hogs.

Mrs. Malcolm McIntyre and son, Orval, spent the week end in Camrose.

Miss Alice Beller is residing in the Lowville district now, as she has accepted a position in the Ferguson home.

Mrs. Frank Thorne, who has been visiting relatives and friends during the past two weeks in the Hoover district, returned to her home in We-taskiwin last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Conery entertained the following guests on Sunday: Mrs. J. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Wm.
Elkerman of Hamilton, and Miss Liza and Harley Johns, of Verdun.

Mrs. Hope Orr entertained about twenty little girls on Sunday at a birthday dinner and party in honor of her small daughter, Daley.

Dr. J. R. McLeod, of Perintosh, was a visitor at the Howe home on Sunday.

Mrs. John Trautman spent a few days last week visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Lyman Anderson, at Sifton.

Mrs. Hulda Meyer, who has been visiting relatives in Wetaskiwin for some time, has now taken up housekeeping rooms in the Hutchison home in the Hoover district.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Trevelyan and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Reister, New Norway
South.

A dance was held in the new restaurant at Winfield on Saturday, April 15th. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

The blacksmith shop is nearing completion and our village smithy will be ready for business in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin arrived here from the States last Wednesday. After an absence of two years they are glad to get back on their old farm again and are convinced that there is no place like home.

The Carroll Bros. are busy moving their sawmill to the new site northeast of Winfield.

The other day I was saying to the wife at the breakfast table, "Well, I guess I will run up to the mill and get a little more lumber and get that kitchen finished. The sleigh will run easier on the frozen bare patches before the sun thaws them out." So after breakfast I set out for the mill.

In Mr. Nelson's timber the sleighing was particularly good, and the team were trotting at a pretty good pace.
Never did it enter my head that within a few seconds I would be struck from behind with a 28-foot tree. This is how it happened. A tree was lying alongside the trail, pulled out the root.

The small end of the tree was sticking out enough to get in between the traces of one of the horses, bringing it over the sleigh and catching me in the back, pitching me against a big standing spruce. Putting out an arm to save myself, it was immediately jailed in between the two trees.

How I escaped without a broken arm
I do not know. A team pulling at one tree and jamming it against another and a fellow's arm in between —you can bet it will be a little while before it will function properly again.

It is not this little accident alone
I wish to advertise. It is the capabilties of Mrs. Nelson, the mill-owner's wife, in rendering first aid to the injured to a good many people in this outlying country. A graduate nurse from one of the largest hospitals in the U.S.A., always willing to give a helping hand, knowing her business, is certainly a great help to Mr. Nelson and his men at the mill, where accidents are bound to occur at one time or another. I heartily thank Mrs.

Nelson for her kindness and efficient treatment.

Look at the label on your paper.
